Where there's a will, I want to be in it.

If I agreed with you, we'd both be wrong.

We never really grow up, we only learn how to act in public.

To steal ideas from one person is plagiarism. To steal from many is research.

FitBit and the Cold, Hard Truth

It has been said that we lie best to ourselves and apparently we have been lying to ourselves for years about how many calories we really need. We used to rely on the online calculators and then enter our stats and we thought we were losing weight but then we bought the FitBit. This bad boy measures your activity and your heart rate. You think you are doing good by burning 2400 calories a day then bam you check your FitBit and it tells you "No, Queen or King of Self Delusion, you only burned a measly 1640 calories. Step away from the snack cakes." To say we were disappointed is too mild. Heartbroken might be more accurate. Not quite suicidal, but it was a dark moment. But once we recovered we started paying WAY more attention to what we eat and eventually our jeans fit a lot better or we look better in our clothes that we bought last year and never wore. Keep up the good work guys we are all feeling better and spring is just around the corner and we want to be able to enjoy the weather.

Life Skills Class:

Students made a 5-year goal collage to exhibit their long-term goals. We covered that long-term goals are achieved through a series of short-term goals. It takes time, hard work, and patience so don't give up!

Yolanda 'Lynn' Simpson, MBA with Believe Consulting & Services, LLC came to cover completing an employment application and conducted mock interviews with the students.

Kamara and I attended Mental Health First Aid USA training on 02/09 in Person County. This training introduced us to the risk factors and warning signs of a variety of mental health challenges common among adolescents, including anxiety, depression, psychosis, eating disorders, AD/HD, disruptive behavior disorders, and substance use disorder.

Mental Health First Aid USA is coordinated by the National Council for Behavioral Health, the Maryland Department of Health and Mental Hygiene, and the Missouri Department of Mental Health. Mental Health First Aid USA worked with experts at the National Technical Assistance Center for Children's Mental Health at the Georgetown University Center for Child and Human Development to develop the youth program.

Each newsletter we will provide information about a specific mental health challenge. This edition we would like to look at First Aid for Suicidal Thoughts and Behaviors. Suicide is the second leading cause of death for young people. In the U.S. in 2008, an average of one young person (age 15-24 years) dies by suicide every two hours and three minutes.

How to Tell Whether a Young Person is Suicidal

- Threatening to hurt or kill themselves
- Seeking access to pills, weapons, or other means to kill themselves
- Talking or writing about death, dying or suicide (including in schoolwork, creative writing, and artwork)
- Expressing hopelessness, no reason for living, or having no sense of purpose in life
- Having rage, anger, or seeking revenge
- Acting recklessly or engaging on risky activities without thinking
- Feeling trapped
- Increasing alcohol or drug use.
- Withdrawing from friends, family or society
- Having a dramatic change in mood (may even be a shift from being sad or depressed to happy, with a sense of resolve; often with no clear indication of how or why the shift in mood occurred)
- Sleeping all of the time or being able to sleep
- Being anxious or agitated
- Giving away prized possessions

If you see some warning signs that a young person may be feeling suicidal, it is important to ask the young person directly about suicidal thoughts. For example, “Are you having thoughts of suicide?” or “Are you thinking about killing yourself?” Always seek professional help when a person is suicidal.

How should I talk with a young person who is suicidal?

It is important to

- Tell the person that you are concerned and that you want to help.
- Express empathy for the young person and what they are going through.
- Respect the culture of the young person and respond in ways that demonstrate this respect. For example, consider issues such eye contact, physical space, and language as well as the role and relationship of the first aider with the young person.
- Clearly state thoughts of suicide are common and that help is available to discuss these thoughts, because this may instill a sense of hope.
- Tell the young person that thoughts of suicide do not have to be acted on.

Encourage the youth to do most of the talking, if they are able to. Suicidal thoughts are often a plea for help and a desperate attempt to escape from problems and distressing feelings. Listen to the youth, and talk about some of the specific problems the youth is experiencing. Discuss healthful ways to deal with problems but do not attempt to solve the problems yourself.

How can I tell how serious or urgent the situation is?

First, determine whether the young person has definite intentions to take their life. To do this, you need to ask the young person if they have a plan for suicide.

- “Have you decided how you would kill yourself?”
- “Have you decided when you would do it?”
- “Have you taken any steps to secure the things you would need to carry out your plan?”

Next, you need to know about the following extra risk factors:

- Has the young person been using alcohol or other drugs? The use of alcohol or other drugs can make a person more susceptible to acting on impulse.
- Has the young person made a suicide attempt in the past? A previous suicide attempt makes a person more likely to make a future suicide attempt.

ALL THOUGHTS OF SUICIDE MUST BE TAKEN SERIOUSLY.

Once you have established that there is risk of suicide, you need to take action to keep the young person safe. A young person who is actively suicidal should not be left on their own. Give the person a safety contact who is available at all times (such as one of the suicide hotline numbers, a friend or family member who has agreed to help, or an informal or professional help giver). Do not use guilt or threats to prevent suicide. For example, do not tell the young person they will go to hell or ruin other people’s lives if they complete suicide.

Suicide Hotlines

If you or someone you know is in suicidal crisis, call a suicide hotline (toll free, 24 hours/day, 7 days/week).

911 Communications

~Submitted by Tonya Pegg

After the Hazard Communications Training I decided to take a tour of the remodeled 911 Communications Center. I was very proud to see how updated & upgraded the department is! I was also certain that being a 911 Operator is not a job for me; way too many things going on at once. After leaving I started having questions and Cindi Jones, Asst. Director / Training Officer, was nice enough to answer them for me.

1) On the average, how many calls does 911 receive a day?

This can vary from day to day. We receive administrative telephone calls for the Sheriff's Office and Jail as well as emergency calls. Basically, people call the 911 center about EVERYTHING! Between 100-150 phone calls a day.

2) What is one of your most memorable calls?

The one where the elderly lady lost both her arms during a dog attack or the 80+ year old gentleman begging for help while trapped, hanging upside down from a ladder with a broken leg.

3) How many employees does the 911 have?

11 full time and 2 regular part time

4) What are the shift hours?

They are 12 hour shifts from 6am - 6pm and 6pm - 6am.

5) What type of training is necessary?

We have 40 hour courses in Medical, Fire and Police dispatching. The SBI requires 40 hour training courses for each dispatcher. Along with monthly continuing education we have recertification courses every 2 years. There is also lot of hands on training with learning the county itself and county specific procedures. Here at 911 we learn something new EVERY day.

6) Any advice for calling 911?

One of the biggest problems I have noticed is people not knowing where they are. Have you ever thought about driving down the road and having a flat tire or even an accident? Would you be able to call 911 for help and know how to tell the 911 operator where you are? With cell phones that allow us to call from many different locations now people don't think about or maybe they don't see the need to know where they are. At 911 we don't automatically know where you are. Even though technology has improved by leaps and bounds over the last 10 years and some depict 911 as being able to find you regardless of the circumstances it just doesn't always work that way. There are situations where yes, we can find you but that is only if you are at the right place at the right time and your call bounced off just the right tower at just the right time. People still need to be familiar with their surrounding and know where they are.

Obviously this is not a simple job or a job for a one-track mind type of worker. Lots of training, 12 hour shifts, away from family on holidays, unnecessary calls, lots of emotion to deal with... these employees deserve our respect. Thank you to Caswell County 911 Communications!
